Proposal

Maggie Patton
16 February 2017

Description

For this project, I would like to create a journal application. This application will serve as somewhat of a self help app that allows the user to write a daily entry and input a picture. In each entry, there would be certain prompts that a user could respond to such as:

—something good that happened:
—something you are looking forward to:
—something funny you heard or saw today:

I also plan to include a goals page where the user could input certain goals they have, and a mood/symptoms page for the user to track their entries.

Visual Design

I plan to use a tab bar controller for this app. The different tabs would be the journal entries, goals, and a mood/symptoms page. There would be a table view in the tab.